

Before You Book a Mobile Coffee Bar for Your Event

7 Questions That Save You From a Bad Day

1 Are they actually insured for your venue?

Most venues — hotels, corporate offices, churches, event halls — legally require a vendor to carry liability insurance before they're allowed to set up. Ask to see proof, not just hear "yes." A vendor who hesitates here is a red flag.

2 Do they bring their own power and water, or do they need yours?

A mobile setup that depends on your venue's outlets and sinks can fall apart fast if the venue doesn't have what they need in the right spot. Ask exactly what they're self-sufficient on, and what they need from you.

3 What happens if the weather turns?

Outdoor events are weather-dependent. Ask what their rain plan actually is — not "we'll figure it out," a real plan: a covered setup, a reschedule policy, or a rescheduling window without penalty.

4 Is the menu actually customizable, or are you getting a fixed list?

A lot of "custom" menus are really just a few pre-set combos. Ask what's genuinely flexible — dietary needs, a signature drink built around your event, adjusting for guest count.

5 What's the real minimum, and what's included in the price?

Get the full number before you fall in love with the idea. Ask what counts as "included" versus an add-on, so the quote you get is the number you actually pay.

6 How far out do they book, and what's the deposit and cancellation policy?

Good vendors get booked early, especially for weddings and holiday season. Ask their real lead time, and get the cancellation terms in writing before you commit.

7 Can they actually serve your headcount, start to finish, without a line that swallows the event?

A beautiful setup that can't keep up with 100 guests creates a 20-minute line and a frustrated crowd. Ask how many people per hour they can realistically serve, and hold them to a real number, not a guess.

---

Now that you know what to ask... here's what we'd tell you if you asked us.
Sophisticated Sips · New Port Richey, FL · (813) 595-3536 · sophisticatedsips.net